MARY DEVEREUX'S

Charming Story of Marblehead

"From Kingdom to Colony"

Literary World

It is many a long day since such a charming love story has been written, despite its being historical.

Portland Transcript

A brave heroine, beautiful, fascinating, inconsistent, wilful, lovable. The romance is a delightful one.

Atlanta Constitution

Delightfully fascinating from start to finish.

Boston Courier

So romantic is the story of those stormy times, and so charmingly is it told, that one can scarce leave the book ere it is finished.

Zion's Herald

The book has a quaint charm, as the author has caught the atmosphere of the times.

Boston Journal

Throughout love is dominant, but it is brave, sweet true love, and we are sorry that the book should end so soon.

Philadelphia American

As a story we have seldom met one so thoroughly delightful. It is a sweet, true tale of good, strong, noble and loving men and women.

Chicago Journal

An excellent story dealing with great events in the early days of the American Revolution. . . . It is dramatic in a high degree. The patriotism of the "embattled farmers" furnishes an atmosphere of lofty motives and strenuous devotion.

KIPLING.

ONE MAN, not possessing any delegated authority, not holding any public office, responsible only to himself for his political utterances, is to-day the arbiter of public opinion in an empire of four hundred millions of people.

A single line of his pen can change a nation's policy, can make a man famous. Four stanzas of twelve lines each has created a fund which has relieved the agony of hundreds.

This man is now in the prime of life and usefulness. His works rank on the library shelf with those of Dickens, Scott and Thackeray. Each day creates a new interest in them.

To the bookseller but one inexpensive collected edition is accessible, the SWASTICA, or Sign-Manual, and even this is limited. Issued IN A NEW DRESS of tan, blue, and red, half calf, finely tooled, handsome in appearance, it SHOULD BE FOUND ON THE SHELVES IN EVERY BOOKSTORE. No other living author is so well known and advertised. There are no competing editions to be met.

NEW PRICE-LISTS FOR 1900 ON APPLICATION.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY has just ready, in The People's Library, Marie Corelli's "Barabbas, a dream of the world's tragedy," of which they control the entire paper covered edition.

THE NEW AMSTERDAM BOOK COMPANY announce the third edition of Dr. Andrew Balfour's stirring story of adventure, entitled "Vengeance is Mine," illustrated by John H. Betts. Two editions of this remarkable book were exhausted in as many weeks. Their "book for tired men and women," by George V. Hobart, entitled "D. Dinkelspiel, his gonversationings," with illustrations by F. Opper, is also selling well.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. have just ready a work entitled "Paris as it is, the life and people," by Katherine de Forest, for many years Paris correspondent and well known as one of the cleverest writers for women whose work appears in our periodical literature. Miss de Forest's book is described as "a sort of sublimated extension of the guide books," giving an intimate account of Parisian life and places of interest.

STREET & SMITH announce that they have started a library of first-class fiction to be entitled The Romance Series, and issued in paper covers to retail at 50 cents. Six numbers will be published at once, including "'Tween Snow and Fire," by Bertram Mitford; "The Yoke of the Thorah" and "As It was Written," both by Sidney Luska, (Henry Harland;) "A Banker of Bankersville," by Maurice Thompson; and "A Chase for a Bride," a tale of the Philippines, by St. George Rathborne.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "The United States Naval Academy, being the yarn of the American Midshipman (naval cadet,) showing his life on the old frigates and ships-of-the-line, and then at the Naval School at Annapolis, and how that institution became a famous naval college, meanwhile making him into the most accomplished and versatile young seaman in the world," by Park Benjamin, of the Class of '67. They have nearly ready "The Angel of Clay," a tale of the fascinating life of studios, by William Ordway Partridge, author of "Song Life of a Sculptor," etc., with illustrations by A. B. Wenzell.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish next week "The Touchstone," a novel by Edith Wharton, in which she is said again to make use of the psychological detail which made "The Greater Inclination," her volume of short stories, such a remarkable piece of literary work. Cyrus Townsend Brady whose "Freedom of the Sea" has reached its 30th thousand has ready "The Grip of Honor," a patriotic romance full of picturesque incidents; a posthumous story by Blanche Willis Howard will be named "The Garden of Eden;" and there will be a volume of strong, clean stories by Robert Shackelton, to be entitled "Toomey and Others." Eliot Gregory, ("The Idler,") whose volume of essays, entitled "Worldly Ways and Byways," met with such approbation in high literary places, has also prepared a new volume, to be known as "The Ways of Men."

THE S. S. MCCLURE COMPANY, New York, announce three new books for immediate publication. The more timely of these is entitled "Dwight L. Moody—Some Impressions and Facts," by the late Henry Drummond, with an introduction by George Adam Smith, D.D. Mr. Drummond wrote these impressions and recollections just after his last visit to Mr. Moody in America. An interesting addition to this season's fiction will be "Monsieur Beaucaire," by Booth Tarkington, the author of "The Gentleman from Indiana," a story of a French prince living incognito in the fashionable society of England in the last century, with illustrations (in two colors) and attractive and dainty decorations. The third book, "The Green Flag and other Stories of War and Sport," by A. Conan Doyle, is full of novel incident and has the same strong, sustained interest that made his "Sherlock Holmes" stories so fascinating.

Gradually they grow more difficult, until the pupil who has practised faithfully is able to draw any ordinary picture.

Intimate life-histories of over five hundred species of wild flowers, written in untechnical language, emphasize for the first time in a popular book the marvellously interesting and vital relationship existing between these flowers and the special insect to which each is adapted. The flowers are divided into five color groups, because by this arrangement anyone with no knowledge of botany whatever can readily identify the specimens met during a walk. The various popular names by which each species is known, its preferred dwelling-place, months of blooming and geographical distribution follow its description. Lists of berry-bearing and other plants most conspicuous after the flowering season, of such as grow together in different kinds of soil, and finally of family groups arranged by that method of scientific classification adopted by the International Botanical Congress are also given.

The story of a rather illiterate young man, who finds himself in Liverpool penniless. He ships as a sailor on a vessel bound for Philadelphia and has a painfu experience. Arrived in America he is alternately a tramp or a worker at odd jobs; he has an experience with prison and with the Indians in the "Rockies" and travels to Canada and back to New York, where he is left in the Bowery still penniless.

A description of the poverty oppression and utter hopelessness of the ignorant Italian peasantry. The river Edera ran through a farming country a day's journey from Rome. Its waters were to be turned from their course to run a new syndicate electric enterprise. It meant ruin to the peasants, and they combined against it with dire consequences to the hero and heroine. A gifted priest banished to this lonely region by the church is the leading spirit of the story.

Six workingmen, experiencing the evils and imperfections of the industrial and social conditions under which they labor, meet to discuss those conditions and to seek the causes of those evils. Their investigations lead them to the conclusion that the causes of the inequality of which they feel the burden are to be sought in the defects of religious systems. The debates disclose truths which crystallize into practical form. The truth-seekers, rich and poor, consecrate themselves to the principles which they find revealed, and believe that their discoveries will lead to tangible and potent changes in the world of economics and religion.

The first edition of this work was published in two volumes. In preparing the material for a cheaper issue it has been found necessary to omit a good deal that was contained in the first edition. The omissions consist chiefly of details of school life and portions of correspondence originally inserted because they had special interest for readers personally associated with Uppingham. In making excisions the author has aimed at retaining all that was essential to the illustration of Thring's educational ideas. Some rearrangement of the material has also seemed advisable.

The author's aim has been to furnish medical students with a clear, accurate, and concise account of the anatomy of the brain, to be used as a guide in their study of that organ. It has been thought best to omit minor details, and to exclude, so far as possible, subjects which are still matters of controversy; use has been made of the Latin terms adopted and recommended by the German Anatomical Society at its meeting in Basel, to the extent that they have been inserted, parenthetically, after the names commonly employed in this country.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 14, 1900.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach his office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE QUARTERLY CUMULATIVE REFERENCE LIST.

WITH the present issue THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY presents a new cumulative feature in its book list. Heretofore the cumulation has been but once a year—in the "Annual Summary Number," and in the "Annual Catalogue." We are now proposing to make the cumulation quarterly, and the first quarterly cumulative list is published as a supplement to this number. The separate publication is made in response to suggestions that it would be a convenience to the trade to have the list in this separate form for purposes of ready reference, and we shall be prepared to supply extra copies of the quarterly cumulative list at the price of $1 per year, though subscribers, however, are entitled to one copy of the supplement for each subscription to the WEEKLY, there being no increase of or addition to the subscription price of the WEEKLY proper.

This cumulative list, covering the entries of the preceding three months by author, title, and subject entry, has as appended features a cumulation of the record of cheap series, etc., and a directory of publishers represented in the books of the quarter. This is another development of our new bibliographic system, which we trust by the end of the year will be considered by the trade not only an improvement on our previous bibliographic system, but, on the whole, the best system of book trade bibliography offered in any book-producing country.

RELATIVE BOOK PRODUCTION, AMERICAN AND FOREIGN.*

BY DR. E. C. RICHARDSON, Librarian of Princeton University.

AN article by Percy L. Parker, in The Independent of November 23, 1899, based on another article by Roland Smith in the London Bookseller for June 13 of the same year, gives the figures for the world's annual output of books as follows: Germany 23,908; France 13,268; Italy 9567; Great Britain 7249; United States 5315; Netherlands 2863; Belgium 2272; Denmark 1198; Switzerland 1000; Canada 735; Norway 589, and Egypt 164. He remarks of these figures that "They will certainly do something to take the conceit out of those Anglo-Saxons," etc.

Every year some such item goes the round of the papers and serves as the text for various comments, congratulations, or condolences. "Great Britain," it is said, "produces less than a third of the new books produced by Germany, not very many more than half of the new books produced by France, and considerably less than the total produced by Italy." "As a matter of fact, there is no civilized country in Europe of any size, not even excepting Russia, which does not match or over-match the literary production of the United States." Sometimes Italy (10,401) or Japan (26,965) is added to or substituted for Russia (10,242) in this statement, but the inference is always the same, that America is far behind the rest of the world in that evidence of civilization which comes from the quantity of books published. A French paper adds British India to the list, and gives the order as Germany, France, Italy, British India, Japan, Great Britain, United States, Turkey, etc.!

The past year has been unusually prolific in repetitions of the fiction, and has yielded besides the article of Parker, tribes of stories like the one which, originating with the London Standard, was transmitted by the St. James Gazette (October 21, 1899,) and then into various American papers. This form of the myth gives the figures as, Germany 24,000; France 13,000; Italy 9500; Great Britain 7300; United States 5300; and the Netherlands 2500. Who could guess from this that either Great Britain or the United States produces on the lowest sound estimate more books than any other nation, while together the "Anglo-Saxons" produce more than all the continental nations of Europe put together. Yet such is the fact.

It may seem, perhaps, a matter of no great importance whether America produces more or less books than other countries, and it contributes, no doubt, to humility on the part of the "Anglo-Saxons" to be annually told of their illiteracy; but every one has a right to his own, and the fact is that for many years we have been robbing our Italian, French, and German friends of this valuable discipline in humility. And then it does matter scientifically. When Reclus's "Europe," which gives substantially these figures, remarks that "Russia actually publishes more works than either Great Britain or Austria-Hurgary," it means that culture historians are going to measure the civilization of the various countries by these standards. It does therefore matter if history matters, if national honor and prestige are anything, if patriotism is honorable and extends beyond wars and commerce to matters which concern the mind.

What, then, are the facts of the matter? Let us take a look at the sources. At the very first test the fact emerges that 4000 of the Italian "books" are books under 25 pages, and 6000 of the German books are not printed in Germany at all. Again, the Smith-Parker figures give to France 788 books on poetry and drama; but of these 788 "books" of poetry and drama, 286 are of under 25 pages, 43 of them being actually of 4 pages or under, and 6 consisting of only a single page. More than half are pamphlets under the American definition.

The cause of error is clearly suggested by these examples. It lies in the different standards used by the various sources. That this is the cause appears still more clearly on further examination. The chief current sources are Hinrichs's "Verzeichniss," the Bibliographie de la France, the Bibliografia Italiana, the London Publishers' Circular, and the Publishers' Weekly. An examination of these sources made some time since from the latest volumes then at hand gave the following figures: Germany 22,000; France, 12,300; Italy 10,401; Great Britain 6573; and America 5703. These are substantially the Smith figures and undoubtedly the Smith sources. But the sources from which they are compiled are no two founded on the same standard. Some are linguistic, while others are national. Some frequently duplicate titles. Some include, others omit periodicals, or pamphlets.

Take the matter a little in detail: Examining first the German lists, it appears (1) that the so-called German figures include Swiss and Austrian books to the number of say 6000; (2) that 13,000 out of 22,000 are of under 100 pages; (3) that periodicals are largely included, and (4) that many are published in parts and appear at least twice in a year in the "Verzeichniss." The French list does not include periodicals to so great an extent, but does have (1) annuals (338) and almanacs (267); and (2) reprint extracts from periodicals (1198.) (3) It also repeats part continuations so extensively so to count Joanne, "Dict. geog." 34 times, and to count 30 consecutive parts of the "Encyclopedie Chimique," as 30 consecutive numbers in one issue of the Bibliographie, and (4) includes pamphlets to the number of 6133 out of its 12,300. The Italian list again, includes less part continuations, but has (1) no less than 7889 pamphlets out of the total of 10,401 "books," (2) many periodicals (including even 129 political journals,) and even legislative bills. The Spanish, Dutch, and other lists are even more padded, the Spanish counting each number of current magazines and reviews.

The British and American lists, on the other hand, contain practically no part continuations or pamphlets, and the American lists exclude even bound volumes of periodicals and annuals included by the British, together with large numbers of books of local, minor, or temporary interest, such as directories, school books, subscription books, paper covered books, local histories, as well as sermons, tracts, college catalogues, and other school publications, town reports, legislative bills, reports of societies, extracts from periodicals and other matters included in the continental lists.

In order, therefore, to make these figures of value, they need to be gauged up or down to a common standard. Three reasonable bases are suggested in the figures: (1) All substantial books, excluding periodicals and pamphlets, as well as broadsides, engravings, posters, single sheet maps, sheet music, etc.; (2) including also pamphlets and whole volumes of periodicals, but no more; and (3) either of these on a basis of linguistic instead of national production.

I will spare you further details of figures, except to say, that at least 450 directories, 300 school books, 500 paper-covered books, 100 local histories, 200 subscription books and 200 college books should be added to the list of American books. The result on the first or substantial book test gives Germany 4500; France 4200; Italy 2512; Great Britain 8000; and the United States 6650.

This result may be cross-checked in various ways. Thus, besides the sources usually quoted, France, Russia, Italy, Sweden, have annual catalogues which give for France 6752 instead of 13,268; for Russia 3165 instead of 10,242; for Italy 2975 instead of 9567; for Sweden 1460 instead of 9122, which is roughly identical with the results of direct analysis.*

It is a poor rule that will not work both ways. Suppose instead of taking the best foreign without analysis and the worst American, we take the best American equally without analysis and the worst foreign.

According to the official report of the Librarian of Congress, there were nearly 60,000

*The following list of figures shows on its face the variations in standards:

Germany, 22,000 (Hinrich's estimate, 1897); 23,908 (Smith-Parker, 1898). No annual catalogue.
France, 13,268 (Smith-Parker); 12,300 (Bibliographie de la France); 6752 ("Catalogue Annuel").
Russia, 10,242 ("Statesman's Year-Book"); 3165 ("Annual Catalogue").
Italy, 9567 (Smith-Parker); 10,401 (Bibliografia Italiana); 2975 ("Catalogo-Annuale").
Netherlands, 2863 (Smith-Parker); 1787 (Nederlandsche Bibliographie).
Belgium, 2272 (Smith-Parker); 922 (Bibliographie de la Belgique).
Sweden, 9122 (Smith); 1460 ("Arskatalog for svenska bokhandeln").
Denmark, 1198 (Smith); 1559 ("Dansk Bogfortegnelse").
Norway, 589 (Smith-Parker); 648 ("Norsk Bogfortegnelse").
Austria, 1902 (Reclus, 1876).
Switzerland, 1000 (Smith).
Spain, 1153 (Boletin de la libreria, 1894-95).
Japan, 26,965 (Critic, Mar. 13, 1897).
Egypt, 164 (Smith).
Canada, 735 (Smith).
Great Britain, 7249 (Smith-Parker); 6573 (Publishers' Circular); 9699 (London Bookseller); 6749 ("English Catalogue").
United States, 5315 (Smith); 5703 (Publishers' Weekly); 5668 (Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer); 4782 ("American Catalogue"); 59,217 (Librarian of Congress).

volumes copyrighted in 1896.* Comparing this with 2975, the figures which do not lie teach us that instead of producing as affirmed, "considerably less than Italy" or "overmatched by Italy," we produce about twenty times as many.

If we hasten to say that "book" under the American copyright law includes all sorts of things even to separate newspaper articles, we correct an impression false indeed, but actually not as false as the original statement which gave 9567 to Italy and 5313 to the United States.

Passing now to the second standard, which includes pamphlets and volumes of periodicals, the relative American production is still more striking. Who will venture to guess how many pamphlets the United States produces in a year. Princeton University receives college and school catalogues alone 2000 annually. The State of New Jersey alone has averaged 700 legislative bills annually. Think again of the myriads of town reports, occasional sermons, church manuals and missionary leaflets, religious tracts, Sunday school leaflets, and the like, all of which have their counterparts in our foreign lists.

Excluding entirely the class under 25 pages, which constitutes forty per cent. of all the Italian list, there cannot possibly be less than 10,000 pamphlets between 25 and 100 pages published in America annually.

So much for pamphlets. Passing now to the matter of periodicals, we are in a region where America holds first place undisputed, and publishes not less than 21,000 annually, of which 3309 are of a strictly magazine character. The greater part of the magazines, and many of the newspapers, publish at least two volumes per year. It is safe, therefore, to say that there are not less than 30,000 volumes of periodicals produced each year in the United States.

There are, therefore, of books, substantial pamphlets. and volumes of periodicals produced annually in the United States not less than 47,000; and if pamphlets of under 25 pages are reckoned, including legislative bills and that sort of thing, not less than 80,000 or 90,000.

Roughly speaking, the proportion is as 47,000 to perhaps 12,000 for Gemany, 10,000 for France, and 6000 for Italy.

This leads, therefore, to the third basis of comparison, where German figures are not national but include Switzerland, Austria, etc.; French include Belgium; Spanish include Spanish America; and English include both the British Empire and the United States. Reckoned on the basis of the substantial books, it may be said that there are 9000 German (Germany 5000, Austria 2000, Switzerland 1000, Russia, etc., 1000); 5000 French (France 4200, Belgium 500); 2000 Italian, and 18,000 Anglo-Saxon (British 8000, American 6650, Canadian 735, Australian, African, etc., 2000.) Including periodicals and pamphlets, and reckoning that the British Empire somewhat exceeds the United States, we have for the "Anglo-Saxons" not far from 100,000 volumes annually, excluding leaflets of under 25 pages,—or more, probably, than all continental languages put together.

On whatever basis therefore reckoned, the United States produce more books than any other nation on earth except, perhaps, Great Britain; and if the periodical volume is counted, more probably than Great Britain.

All this is a matter of quantity, to be sure, and that is all that we really have to do with here, since it was a question of quantity that was raised. But in case you are inclined to say, as some have done, "How about quality?" I add that the average American product is not so far behind the average continental as it is often represented to be.

If it is true that Germany still excels us in that highest class of original research work which in the last analysis is absolutely necessary to progress in civilization, I believe it to be true also that we excel in that mass of good literature which tends to produce a large number of reasonably intelligent individuals.

* The report for the year ending June, 1899, gives a similar table of 59,217 but classifies so that each class can be distinguished. It still calls 15,215 "books" of which 5834 are what we have called "substantial" books. This affords an excellent cross check. If 5834 books have been copyrighted, 6650 must be a very moderate estimate of the number actually printed.

HEARING ON THE PETITION TO DISSOLVE THE HARPER CORPORATION CLOSED.

THE hearing in the matter of the application of the corporation of Harper & Brothers for a voluntary dissolution came to a close on the 9th inst. before the referee. Henry S. Harper, the treasurer of the corporation, was the only witness examined, but most of the hearing was taken up with a discussion between the referee, George L. Rives, attorney for the corporation, and J. Noble Emley, attorney for J. W. Nicholls, a creditor, as to the status of Mr. Emley in the case.

Mr. Harper denied that any members of the old firm withdrew large sums of money from the business. Although the treasurer, Mr. Harper, did not negotiate the loan with J. P. Morgan & Co., Mr. Emley asked if it was not his duty as treasurer to do so. Mr. Harper replied that it might have been, but that, nevertheless, some one else did it.

At this point Mr. Rives called the attention of Referee Cantine to the fact that Mr. Emley, representing only a forty-five thousand dollar claim out of claims aggregating $3,000,000, was holding off other creditors and hindering the settlement of the business. It came out that Mr. Nicholls, Mr. Emley's client, had been the manager of the subscription department of Harper & Brothers, receiving 5 per cent. on his sales.

Mr. Emley, among other things, said he was present to show cause against the granting of the application and claimed that at the time of the incorporation the stock was not fully paid, as stated.

Mr. Harper then testified that the money which had been used to pay the debts since the corporation was formed had come from sales and the discounting of six months' notes. Neither of the attorneys cared to question the witness further, and both sides rested. The referee declared the hearing closed.

PRESS ARTISTS' LEAGUE EXHIBITION.

THE First Annual exhibition of the Press Artists' League which is to be held in the East Parlor of the Waldorf-Astoria, during the week beginning Monday, May 14th, will be unique in the annals of Art Exhibitions in this country. Its primary object was to show the originals of cartoons, portraits, caricatures and general work of the newspaper artists employed by the leading newspapers of New York City, and the first date set was April 16th. But the projectors builded better than they knew, for the news travelled rapidly, and the committee soon found themselves in possession of a wealth of good material that could not be possibly put into effective frames and properly catalogued in the allotted time. There are in all about five thousand sketches in black and white and a large number of colored drawings and sketches in water colors and oils. The artists represented are not by any means limited to those whose field is solely newspaper work. Illustrators of books, and of weekly and monthly periodicals have also a place in the scheme, and their originals will be of great interest to collectors and for the purposes of extra-illustration. The general committee of artists who are in charge is composed of Messrs. R. F. Outcault, Homer Davenport, C. G. Bush, Fred. S. Cozzens, Geo. Bleekman, Clare Angell, Ch. Nelan and O. C. Malcolm. The headquarters of the League are at Room No. 24, World Building.

JOHN PIERPONT MORGAN BUYS THE IRWIN LIBRARY.

THE Theodore Irwin library, it is now definitely known, was not secured by Frederick K. Trowbridge, but was purchased by J. Pierpont Morgan, the banker, who, for years, has been unostentatiously gathering together a collection of books that places his library in the very front rank of the great private libraries of the world. Mr. Morgan's library already contains a Gutenberg Bible, a fine set of the folio editions of Shakespeare, including a very large and fine copy of the first folio, and many other books of equal note and rarity. His recent additions by the purchase of the stock of James Tooney, the London bookseller, the unique manuscript collection from the Ford library, and the acquisition of the Irwin collection make the Morgan library a very treasure house of scarce books and noteworthy manuscripts.

W. L. ALLISON CO. SELL OUT TO DONOHUE BROTHERS.

DONOHUE BROTHERS, who have succeeded to the business of the corporation formerly conducted as Donohue, Henneberry & Co., at 407 Dearborn Street, Chicago, have purchased the entire stock of sheets and plates of the W. L. Allison Co., of New York. They will continue all the important lines formerly put out by the Allison Co., with material additions. They are now preparing a catalogue of all their publications, including the announcements for the coming season, which they hope to be able to mail on the 20th inst.

"A NEWSPAPER NIGHT" AT THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE April dinner of The Booksellers' League will be given on the evening of the 18th inst., at the rooms of the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, corner of Eighteenth Street, New York. The post-prandial exercises will be a "newspaper night." T. J. Vivian, a well-known journalist, will discuss "the making of a great daily newspaper," and Josiah C. Pumpelly, an old friend of the League, will take up the question of "the new mission of the modern American newspaper." Members are expected to be in their places at 6:30 o'clock sharp. Unless members intending to be present notify the Entertainment Committee, through Cass Richardson, at E. P. Dutton & Co.'s, 31 W. Twenty-third Street, no provision will be made for them. Extra tickets now cost $1.50 each.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ROBERT ADAMS, the bookseller, died at Fall River, Mass., on the 2d inst., aged eighty-four. Mr. Adams started in the book business at Fall River in 1842 and was actively engaged until 1865, when his health obliged him to retire. During that time his well-known establishment has been conducted by his son, Edward S. Adams.

CAPTAIN JOHN CODMAN, the famous advocate of free ships and free trade, died at Boston, Mass., on the 6th inst. John Codman was born in Dorchester, Mass., Oct. 16, 1814, and was the son of the Rev. John Codman of that town. He entered Amherst College, but left in his junior year, 1833, finishing his education at sea. He became a captain in the merchant marine, and travelled extensively. Among his publications are "Sailors' Life and Sailors' Yarns," "Ten Months in Brazil, with Notes on the Paraguayan War," "Review of the Report of the Special Committee on Navigation Interests," "The Mormon Country: a Summer with the Latter-Day Saints," "Free Ships; Restoration of the American Carrying Trade," "Round Trip, by Way of Panama, Through California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, and Colorado," "A Solution of the Mormon Problem," "Winter Sketches from the Saddle by a Septuagenarian," and "A Biographical Sketch of William Wheelwright of Newburyport, Mass."

FRANK HAMILTON CUSHING, the ethnologist, died at Washington, D. C., on the 10th inst. He was born at Northeast, Pa., July 22, 1857. In 1875 he was commissioned by Professor Baird to make surveys and collections for the National Museum. In 1879 he attended Powell's expedition in New Mexico as assistant ethnologist; at his own request he was left at a village of Zuñi Indians, with whom he lived for six years and was initiated into their esoteric priesthood. He discovered, in 1881, the ruins of the Seven Cities of Cibola. Seven years later he made extensive explorations among the buried cities of southern Arizona. Along the Gulf coast of Florida, in 1895, he discovered the historic remains of a sea-dwelling people. He was at the time of his death connected with the United States Bureau of Ethnology. He was the author of "The Myths of Creation;" "The Arrow:" "Preliminary Report of the Pepper-Hearst Expedition on the Ancient Key Dwellers of Florida;" also of many monographs, official reports, and papers contributed to magazines, etc., on ethnological subjects.

FATHER ALFRED YOUNG, one of the best-known priests of the Congregation of St. Paul the Apostle, popularly known as the Paulist Fathers, died in New York on the 4th inst. Father Young was born in Bristol, England, January 21, 1831, and was brought to this country as a child. He was graduated from Princeton in 1848 and from the medical department of the University of New York in 1852. A year later he became a communicant of the Roman Catholic Church and entered the seminary of St. Sulpice, at Paris. He was ordained priest in 1856 and appointed vice-president of Seton Hall College. In 1861 he was received as a member of the Congregation of St. Paul the Apostle. Father Young will probably be best remembered for his association with the reformation of church music. This movement sought to abolish the concert style of singing in churches and to bring about other reforms. Those most prominent in the work strove for the restoration of the Gregorian chant for the entire services in the Roman Catholic Church. It is said that the latter form of service was first introduced into the Paulist Fathers' Church at Fifty-ninth Street and Ninth Avenue, New York, in 1870, and has since been a feature of the service there. The name of Father Young was also associated with the movement for congregational singing in Catholic churches, and the latter years of his life were mostly devoted to getting the various parishes actively interested in this movement. Father Young was the author of several works on music and religion. Some of them were: "The Complete Sodality Hymnbook," "The Office of Vespers," "The Catholic Hymnal," "Carols for a Merry Christmas and a Joyous Easter," and "An Order of Divine Praise and Prayer."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS MARY H. JOHNSTON is known in England as the author of "The Old Dominion" and "By the Company's Orders," these being the titles by which the novels familiar to us as "The Prisoners of Hope" and "To Have and to Hold" have been transatlantically renamed. The new christenings were in this case necessitated by the fact that each of the titles chosen by Miss Johnston had already been pre-empted by English novelists.

IN recognition of the important work Anthony J. Drexel Biddle has accomplished in his exhaustive and comprehensive book on "The Madeira Islands," the Royal Geographical Society of London has just elected him a fellow of that widely famous organization, an honor which Mr. Biddle shares in Philadelphia with such an explorer of note as Dr. Donaldson Smith. Mr. Biddle spent several years in the Madeiras, studying the country in all its aspects, and the book completed represents the labor of twelve years. Its publication in America has been retarded in consequence of the Lippincott fire of last year, in which the whole American edition was lost, that house having had the contract to bring it out. At present Mr. Biddle is engaged in a series of articles for newspapers in London, Birmingham and Sheffield on Funchal and its importance in the present conflict in South Africa, Madeira being the coaling station for all the South African steamers, including the troop ships to and from the scene of action. Mr. Biddle is a son of Edward Biddle and a grandson of the late Anthony J. Drexel. He took up journalism shortly after his school days were over, and from journalism he rapidly passed to literature, bringing out several books of fiction in a lighter vein, afterwards taking up more serious work. He went to Madeira and collected with great labor the material for the work which has just secured for him the recognition of one of the greatest societies in the world.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

HARPER & BROTHERS have purchased Golf, the magazine devoted to golfing interests and the official organ of the United States Golf Association. The periodical will continue to be published monthly, the April number being the first to bear the imprint of Harper & Brothers. Mr. Van Tassel Sutphen, the well-known authority on golfing subjects, will be the editor of the periodical. Its contents will be made up of news on the latest events in the golfing world, bulletins of the United States Golfing Association, pictures of new club-houses, links, portraits, and articles by leading authorities on this particular sport.

THE Printing Exposition and mammoth fair to be held by Typographical Union No. 6, at the Grand Central Palace, New York, will be opened May 2.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish soon Keller's "Romeo und Julia auf dem Dorfe," with introduction and notes by Professor W. A. Adams, of Dartmouth College.

JOHN LANE has in press a handsomely printed and illustrated edition of Mlle. de Echerolle's "Side Lights on the Reign of Terror," translated by M. C. Balfour.

THE BOOK EXCHANGE, Little Rock, Ark., has just published a volume of poems by General Albert Pike, who at the time of his death was the highest Mason in rank in the world.

BLISS, SANDS & Co., London, have in press a novel by the late Dr. St. George Mivart, entitled "Castle and Manor." As the title might suggest it is largely a study of country life.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish shortly the new novel by Eden Phillpotts which is to be entitled "Son of the Morning," and not "The Last of Her Line," as was at first announced.

IN the list of Recent French and German Books, in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, April 7, page 713, the price given for Faguet's "Histoire de la litterature française" should be understood as for one volume, the price for the complete work in two volumes being 12 francs or $3.60.

D. APPLETON & Co. announce for early publication two novels—"In Circling Camps," a romance of the American civil war, by J. A. Altsheler;" and "The Brass Bottle," a romance full of quaint conceits and extravagant situations, by F. Anstey (Thomas A. Guthrie,) of "Vice Versa" fame.

W. B. SAUNDERS, Philadelphia, has just ready a second edition, enlarged and revised, of Levy and Klemperer's "Elements of Bacteriology," translated by Dr. Augustus Eshner, with 92 illustrations; also, a new revised edition of Dr. Martin's "Essentials of Surgery," in Saunders's Question Compends.

THE NEW AMSTERDAM BOOK COMPANY has just secured a complete collection of the Grimm "Fairy Tales," (said to be the only complete one in existence,) translated from the original German. They will bring out the translation in the autumn with illustrations, both in a popular edition and in an edition de luxe.

THE illness which obliged Ed. Ackermann to postpone his trip to Paris from March 31 to April has taken so serious a turn that Mr. Ackermann will not be able to go to Paris at all. His resignation has been forwarded to M. Terquem. It is to be hoped that Mr. Ackermann will recover more speedily than now seems likely.

IN our last week's issue we inadvertently announced that the Burrows Brothers Co. would publish Dr. Elliott Coues's "On the Trail of a Spanish Pioneer." This and all other works of Dr. Coues on Western exploration, as the trade may be aware, are published by Francis P. Harper, of 14 West 22d Street, New York.

THE GAMMEL BOOK Co., Austin, Texas, has just published a volume entitled "Six Decades in Texas, or, Memoirs of Francis Richard Lubbock, Governor of Texas in War-Time, 1861-63, a personal experience in business, war, and politics," edited by C. W. Raines, acting State Librarian, and author of a "Bibliography of Texas," etc. The volume contains a number of full-page engravings.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL & Co., London, will publish at once the "Random Recollections" of William Tinsley, once a prominent publisher. His book should be interesting, as Mr. Tinsley's knowledge of affairs of literary, theatrical, and social note was wide and varied. He published the first books of Miss Braddon, Ouida, William Black, Justin McCarthy, and numerous other well-known writers, and also founded Tinsley's Magazine.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish at once a hitherto untranslated novel by Maurus Jókai, entitled "A Christian, but a Roman." The scene is laid in the Rome of Domitian and Carus. They have also in press a volume of college stories, entitled "Stanford Stories, tales of a young university," written by Charles Kellogg Field, a nephew of Eugene Field, in collaboration with William Henry Irwin, both graduates of Stanford University, California.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, (American Branch,) will bring over at once the edition of the complete works of Molière published by the University of Oxford. This volume of more than six hundred pages is, nevertheless, handy in form, and makes, in fact, an ideal edition of the dramatist for the practical purposes of the student. The text followed is that of MM. Eugene Despois and Paul Mesnard, published in the collection of Grands Ecrivains de la France, by Hachette & Co., of Paris.

FRANKLIN K. YOUNG, widely known by his articles on the strategy of the Boer war, is the author of a series of books on chess-playing, known as the "Minor," "Major," and "Grand" Tactics of Chess. Mr. Young believes that the mathematics of chess and of war are identical, and that chess-play and warfare differ only in matters of relatively minor detail. This idea he will bring out more clearly in a fourth volume, "Chess Strategetics Illustrated," which Little, Brown & Co. will publish next fall.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY (INC.,) Boston, will publish at once the following twelve volumes to complete the set of their Court Memoirs Series, of which eight volumes were brought out last season: "Memoirs of Marie Antoinette," by Madame Campan, in two volumes, "Memoirs of the Court of St. Cloud," from a series of private letters, in two volumes; "Memoirs of Empress Josephine," by Madame Ducrest, in three volumes; "Memoirs of Catherine II. of Russia," by one of her Courtiers, in one volume; "Memoirs of the Courts of Sweden and Denmark," from a series of private letters, in two volumes; and "Memoirs of the Court of Berlin," by Count Mirabeau, in one volume.

THE CENTURY COMPANY publish this week Ernest Seton-Thompson's long-promised "Biography of a Grizzly," which will command attention quite as much for its attractive and original get up as for its subject matter. In "Wahb," the grizzly, the author has added a new character to fiction, his method of characterization and description being at once realistic and romantic. From the monster's vigorous cubhood, through the days of its colossal strength, to the inevitable waning that comes with age, we follow the fortunes of the great white bear, slayer of men and of bison, till it staggers blindly, but not unwillingly, to its doom in Death Gulch. The illustrations are printed in tints, and the decorative arrangement of the smaller drawings has been supervised by the artist's wife.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. publish to-day "Robert Tournay," a romance of the French Revolution, by William Sage, with six illustrations by Eric Pape and Mary Ayer; "The Son of the Wolf," tales of the far north, by Jack London, who names his book after the Yukon Indian name for the white man; a handsome edition limited to 300 copies of the "Sonnets and Madrigals of Michelangelo Buonarroti," rendered into English verse by William Wells Newell, to which is added the Italian text, an introduction and notes; "Notes on the Bacon-Shakespeare Question," by Charles Allen, recently Judge of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts; "Pirate Gold," by F. J. Stimson, in the Riverside Paper Series; and Thackeray's "Henry Esmond," and "Three Outdoor Papers," by Thomas Wentworth Higginson, forming Nos. 140 and 141 respectively of the Riverside Literature Series.

HARPER & BROTHERS publish this week "The Klondike Stampede," by Tappan Adney, who was one of the pioneers of the Klondike region, and lived among the gold-seekers during the stirring times of the gold-fever of 1897-'98; "The Princess Sophia," a fantastic romance, by E. F. Benson, the scene of which is laid in the imaginary principality of Rhodope, the resources of which have been sapped by the constant gambling of its citizens and rulers; also, a Popular Edition of W. D. Howells's "Their Silver Wedding Journey." They have under way three new novels—"As Seen by Me," by Lilian Bell, author of "The Instinct of Stepfatherhood;" "Bequeathed," by Beatrice Whitley, author of "Mary Fenwick"; and "The West End," a new novel of English society of the present day, by Percy White, who created some disturbance in English and American society by writing the satirical novel, "Mr. Bailey Martin." They have also in preparation a work entitled "The Conquest of Arid America," by William E. Smythe, who describes in a technical yet popular manner, the Mormon economic system, the Greeley Colony in Colorado, the Riverside Colony in California, etc., by which the arid deserts of America were made the garden spots of the United States.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

PER LAMM, Libraire Commissionnaire, (Librairie Nilsson) has just issued "Repertoire Bibliographique des Principales Revues Françaises, (Bibliographical Index to the Principal French Reviews.) for the year 1898, edited by D. Jordell. The volume records the contents of 257 periodicals alphabeted by subjects and again by authors, with anonymous articles under title. This is the second issue of the index. The first included 146 periodicals, the second already embraces 257 and the work has grown 62 pages larger. A list is given of all the periodicals with the name and address of the editor-in-chief, rate of subscription, and postage, in each instance. The work shows thorough editing and deserves the substantial encouragement so hard to procure for bibliographical work. In these days when the civilized world moves so fast and invents and discovers so much, periodical literature is of indispensable value, and is not available without a scientifically made index. Dictionaries and encyclopædias become old while they are making, and periodicals are their legitimate supplements. With fellow feeling we wish the French "Index to Periodicals" annual increase in prosperity as well as in size. (xii+272+4 p. 8°, cl., 16 fr. 50 c.; pap., 15 fr.) The index is kept on sale by Lemcke & Buechner, of New York.

Vengeance Is Mine

By Dr. ANDREW BALFOUR
AUTHOR OF
"By Stroke of Sword"
"To Arms"

WELL WRITTEN, FULL OF SNAP, ROMANTIC

Graphically illustrated by Jno. H. Betts; frontispiece in colors, reproduction of R. Caton Woodville's famous painting "Up Guards and at Them"

Size 7¾ x 5¼ inches, beautifully bound, $1.50

Just a few selections from a unanimous chorus of praise

"It is in a word the best adventure story I have read for a long time."
—London Truth.

"Well written and abounding in stirring incidents, this story is in every way a vigorous piece of work. Mr. Balfour's powers as a word painter of scenery are of a high order indeed, his West Highland and Mediterranean pictures being alike beautiful. . . . His Napoleon is realistic, and the Gascon, Jules Gironde, is pathetically amusing with his egotism and bombast. There are the elements of a success in this story."
—From ½ col. review Glasgow Herald.

"This is a semi-historical novel put together with very great care and written with much force and insight. . . . The historical interest is sympathetically subordinated to the main thread of the narrative, the loves of Neil Darroch and Kate Ingleby, and the vengeance that Neil sought of his brother Geoffrey.

"To every character touched upon, even lightly, is given the breath of life and the magic of individuality . . . all are vivid personalities, creations of which any novelist could justly feel proud.

"Mr. Balfour writes vigorous English, natural and sincere. We shall follow his career with great interest, for with his qualities of strength, clearness of vision and sincerity, he should go far."—London Literary World.

Ready April 17th: A SHORT HISTORY OF

MONKS & MONASTERIES

By ALFRED WESLEY WISHART, Sometime Fellow in Church History in The University of Chicago

"THERE IS a process of writing history which Trench describes as 'a moral whitewashing of such things as in men's sight were as blackamoors before.' Religious or temperamental prejudice often obscures the vision and warps the judgment of even the most scholarly minds. Conscious of this infirmity in the ablest writers of history it would be absurd to claim complete exemption from the power of personal bias. It is sincerely hoped, however, that the strongest passion in the preparation of this work has been that commendable predilection for truth and justice which should characterize every historical narrative, and that, whatever other shortcomings may be found herein, there is an absence of that unreasonable suspicion, not to say hatred, of everything monastic, which mars many otherwise valuable contributions to monastic history."—From the Author's Preface.

With four photogravure plates, 8vo, hand-sewed, broad margins, deckle edges, gilt top, 454 pages, fully indexed, $3.50 net. Order from your bookseller, or from

PUTNAM'S NEW BOOKS.

The Angel of Clay.

By WILLIAM ORDWAY PARTRIDGE, author of "The Song Life of a Sculptor," etc., Lecturer on the Fine Arts in Columbian University, Washington, D. C. With illustrations by A. B. WENZELL. 16°, $1.25.

From an artist we hope for a tale of the fascinating life of studios, and Mr. Partridge's book is not a disappointment. In this story we have the true artist, who is necessarily first the true man, splendidly portrayed. The novel is of absorbing interest, and is told with that exquisite charm and beauty of style which characterizes all of Mr. Partridge's literary work.

The United States Naval Academy.

Being the Yarn of the American Midshipman (Naval Cadet), showing his life in the old frigates and ships-of-the-line, and then at the Naval School in Annapolis; and how that Institution became a famous Naval College, meanwhile making him into the most accomplished and versatile young seaman in the world. By PARK BENJAMIN, of the Class of 1867. Fully illustrated. 8°, 494 pages, $3.50. (Ready next week.)

This, the first history of the Naval Academy, written by an expert on naval affairs who is thoroughly competent to deal with his subject, must be of interest to every one who pays attention to our National system of education. Mr. Benjamin is a brilliant writer, and has treated his subject in a sympathetic manner.

Wood Working for Beginners.

A Manual for Amateurs. By CHARLES G. WHEELER. With over 700 illustrations. 8°, 560 pages, $3.50.

A manual giving instruction in the use of tools, the fitting out of workshops, and the methods of building all classes of objects, from tool-boxes to houses, and even boats. It will be found a practical guide to those interested in the art of wood working.

Let There Be Light.

The Story of a Workingmen's Club, its Search for the Causes of Poverty and Social Inequality, its Discussions, and its Plan for the Amelioration of Existing Evils. By DAVID LUBIN. 12°, $1.50.

The author is well known in this country and abroad as the advocate of political measures which have held the attention of the United States Government. He now presents a plan for making poor men more comfortable which is certain to be interesting not only to the student of sociology but also to "the workers."

Living by the Spirit.

By HORATIO W. DRESSER. Oblong 24°, in a slip-box, 75 cents.

The purpose of this volume is to throw light on the problems of daily life. It is a clear, concise statement of practical philosophy based on a study of natural law. It abounds in suggestions for the cultivation of habit, self-control, poise, intuition, and the spiritual life. The volume is simple in style, free from technical and theological discussions, and unhampered by bondage to any particular school of thought.

A Series of Stirring War Poems, by JOAQUIN MILLER, written in behalf of the Boers.

These poems, published in the form of a neat booklet, are sure to meet with a ready and active sale. Dr. Leyds, the representative of the Transvaal Republic in Germany, has written his appreciation of the matchless poem, "Boston to the Boers."

The publication of this booklet at the time when the Transvaal Republic is making its struggle for resistance is timely.

Bound in illuminated paper cover, very neat design. Price, 25 cents.

The Verse in this Book disclaims the lofty title and rank of Poesy. It is, as it were, a Record of the Echoes from many-keyed Melodies heard by a back-stairs Lodger in an old rambling Inn.

MISS DE FOREST (for many years Paris correspondent and well known as one of the cleverest writers for women, whose work appears in our periodical literature) has here written for those who wish to get "on the inside" of modern Parisian life. The book is in effect a sort of sublimated extension of the guide-books, giving, with much verve and entire intimacy, an account of the people, home life, and places of interest. It is just the sort of information that a clever friend residing in Paris could supply—indispensable to a full understanding and enjoyment of the French capital (whether during the great Exposition or afterward), but hitherto not open to the general public.
